4MXZDZ - ADRIENNE HADASSAH

The Singular Objects of Architecture should not create the expectation that either architecture or philosophy will be treated in this dialogue in anything like a traditional way (which, were it the case, would seem not so much old-fashioned as reactionary, coming from two of the few cultural figures practising today that we could still dare to call progressive).

Singular Objects Of Architecture – Architecture and Philosophy University Of Minnesota Press, 2002. A singular object is an irreducible cultural creation, which cannot be replaced and which is transcendent. A singular object is not only a building. It can also be a colour (for example Richard Meier builds in white).

A revelatory conversation between two major figures in visual culture. Singular objects—ideas, buildings, colors, sentiments, human beings. Each in turn comes under scrutiny in this exhilarating dialogue between two of the most interesting thinkers working in philosophy and architecture today. Jean Baudrillard and Jean Nouvel discuss fundamental problems of politics, identity, and aesthetics as their exchange becomes an imaginative exploration of the possibilities of modern architecture ...
